

Consolidation with the 114th OVI

Ohio in the War: her statement, generals, and soldiers, Volume 2, by Whitelaw Reid, The Robert Clarke Co, 1895 pp.617 On the 25th of November an order was issued from the headquarters of Nineteenth Army Corps for a permanent consolidation of the One Hundred and Twentieth with the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio, and carried into effect the next day, the One Hundred and Twentieth forming five companies of the new organization. Lieutenant-Colonel Kelly, of the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio, was made Colonel, and Major McKinley, of the One Hundred and Twentieth, Lieutenant-Colonel of the consolidated regiment. The following named officers of the One Hundred and Twentieth, rendered supernumerary by the consolidation, were honorably discharged: Lieutenant-Colonel Slocum, Captains Au, Harvey, Taylor, and Jones, and Lieutenants Van Osteren [sic] and Hughes. This ended the career of the One Hundred and Twentieth as a regimental organization. It entered the service in 1862 with nine hundred and forty-nine officers and men. About one hundred and fifty recruits joined it in 1864, and when merged into the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio, on the 27th day of November, 1864, but four hundred and forty of the whole number remained. Up to this time the aggregate number of killed in action, died of wounds and disease, and discharged because of disability, was six hundred.

"After this disaster the remnant of the regiment retreated with Banks' forces to Morganza, La., where it was consolidated with the 114th Ohio Infantry. On consolidation the following officers of the 120th were honorably discharged: Lieutenant-Colonel Slocum, Captains Au, Harvey, Taylor and Jones, and Lieutenants Van Ostern and Hughes. [From the History of Wayne County, Ohio by Ben Douglas, c. 1878]

This ended the career of the 120th as a regimental organization. It was a good regiment, but was overwhelmed with a series of disasters." [From the History of Wayne County, Ohio by Ben Douglas, c. 1878]

Consolidation with the 114th OVI took place 26 Nov 1864.

[Daily Ohio State Journal, Columbus, OH, Vol XXVII, Issue 148, pg2, published Friday, 6 Jan 1865, available at GenealogyBank]

"The 120th O.V.I. In our yesterdays issue we briefly referred to the fact that the tattered and war worn colors of the noble 120th, were presented to the State by Lieut Col Slocum.

The history of this gallant regiment is a peculiar one, and contains material for volumes of future history. In December, 1862 it took an important part under the command of Col French, in the battle of Chickasaw Bayou near Vicksburg, drawing the first fire of the enemy and nobly sustaining the reputation of the sons of Ohio in coolness and bravery under a galling fire. For two days, the 120th was detailed to support the 9th Michigan and 1st Wisconsin Batteries, during which time it lost heavily. On the 11th of January, 1863, it was the first to charge the rebel fortifications at Arkansas Post, and was the first regiment to plant its colors on that stronghold.

"Having the advance in Grants campaign through Mississippi, it took part in every battle, and on each occasion covered itself with glory. Lieut Co Spiegel succeeded Col French in command, after the battle of Arkansas Post, and remained in that position with marked ability until severely wounded by a shell at Jackson Miss, on the 12th of July, 1863, when Lieut Co Slocum assumed command. In ascending Red River in May, 1864, the boat on which the 120th embarked was fired into by the enemy, and suffered terribly in[?] killed and wounded, - 23 men and officers being the loss on that occasion. Here Co Spiegel was killed, after which Lieut Col Slocum assumed command, and by getting the boat worked over to the opposite shore, succeeded in saving 155[?] men with their guns. By dint of terrible marching through an enemy's country, this bly of brave men finally reached the federal lines and were safely quartered among friends. After its terrible experience by land and water the glorious 120th found itself reduced to less than 100 men, when it was consolidated with the 114th O V I. Our word for it, that wherever the brave boys of the old 120th may be found, there will be a record for bravery which would cause the veins of an Alexander to thrill with envy!"

A Centennial Biographical History of Richland County, Ohio, by A. J. Baughman, 1901: Christopher Au, Company I, 120th OVI

"When the 120th Regiment was consolidated with another regiment, Christopher was assigned to one Company and his "boys" to another company. Christopher opposed this separation and he mustered out and returned home. Even though he was offered a colonelcy in a new organization, he turned it down. During his time with the 120th he had one month's furlough at home, but otherwise was on duty the whole time with his regiment."

"Mr. Arehart took part in the fighting at Graham's plantation [near Alexandria, LA], May 5 to May 7, 1864; at [Avoyelle's Prairie] Prairie Bayou, May 14 to 16; at [Bayou de Glaize May 18] De Glaize, May 16, 1864; [Transfer to 114th OH] in the siege of Mobile, March 26 to April 8, 1865; and in the warfare at Fort Blakely, April 2 to 9, 1865. July 24 following he was transferred to Company E, Forty-eighth Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and was discharged from the service at Houston, Texas, October 4, 1865.." Page 236 "On November 21, 1864, the regiment [the 114th Ohio] was ordered from Morganza, to which point it had proceeded from Alexandria, to the mouth of the White River, Arkansas, and at this place was consolidated with the 120th Ohio. On December 6th the regiment was ordered to Morganza [LA]. On January 8, 1865, it moved to Kenna, Alabama, and on the 24th moved to Barrancas, Florida, [Pensacola] where it remained up to [May] 1865, when it was sent with other forces to Texas."

From the Roster book and other sources, Transferred 27 Nov 1864 to 114th OVI and some later to 48th OVI:

The transfer to the 114th OVI took place the 27th of November 1864. After that date the 114th participated in the Siege of Mobile, Alabama 26 March to 9 April 1865 and the battle of Fort Blakeley, Alabama, 2-9 April 1865.

"The colors of the 120th Ohio were presented the State this evening, by the committee appointed for that purpose. Speeches were made by Governor Brough and Lieutenant Colonel Slocum." [The colors are housed at the Ohio Historical Society in Columbus, OH.]

"The 120th O. V. I. In our yesterday's issue we briefly referred to the fact that the tattered and war worn colors of the noble 120th, were presented to the State by Lieut Col. Slocum. The history of this gallant regiment is a peculiar one, and contains material for volumes of future history. In December, 1862 it took an important part, under the command of Col. French, in the battle of Chickasaw Bayou near Vicksburg, drawing the first fire of the enemy and nobly sustaining the reputation of the sons of Ohio in coolness and bravery under a galling fire. For two days, the 120th was detailed to support the 9th Michigan and 1st Wisconsin Batteries, during which time it lost heavily. On the 11th of January, 1863, it was the first to charge the rebel fortifications at Arkansas Post, and was the first regiment to plant its colors on that stronghold.

Having the advance in Grant's campaign through Mississippi, it took part in every battle, and on each occasion covered itself with glory. Lieut. Col. Spiegel succeeded Col. French in command, after the battle of Arkansas Post, and remained in that position with marked ability until severely wounded by a shell at Jackson Miss., on the 12th of July, 1863, when Lieut Col. Slocum assumed command. In ascending Red River in May, 1864, the boat on which the 120th embarked was fired into by the enemy, and suffered terribly in killed and wounded, -?231? men and officers being the loss on that occasion. Here Col. Spiegel was killed, after which Lieut Col. Slocum assumed command, and by getting the boat worked over to the opposite shore, succeeded in saving ?155 men with their guns. By dint of terrible marching through an enemy's country, this body of brave men finally reached the federal lines and were safely quartered among friends. After its terrible experience by land and water the glorious 120th found itself reduced to less than 100 men, when it was consolidated with the 114th O. V. I. Our word for it, that wherever the brave boys of the old 120th may be found, there will be a record for bravery which would cause the veins of an Alexander to thrill with envy!"

[Commemorative Biographical Record of the Fox River Valley Counties of Brown, Outagamie and Winnebago, J. H. Beers & Company, 1895, pp 470-472.]

[pg 471]"Upon rejoining his regiment at New Orleans, January 7, 1865, Capt. Baer found it consolidated into two companies and assigned to the One Hundred and Fourteenth O. V. I., his company receiving the letter 'K.' Joining Gen. Steele at Pensacola, Fla., he was detailed as acting aide-de-camp on the General's staff, and served with him during the Florida campaign. With two companies, being the remnant of the One Hundred and Twentieth Regiment, he charged the enemy's works at Fort Blakeley, Ala., capturing their main line and taking possession of the village, a portion of his men carrying axes, in place of rifles, with which to cut away the obstructions they [pg 472]encountered. From that point the command proceeded to Mobile [AL], and joined the division of Gen. C. C. Andrews. In June, 1865, they were sent to Texas, and Capt. Baer was appointed ordnance officer of the District of Texas, serving on the staffs of both Gen. Andrews and Gen. Joseph A. Mower until his discharge. His position was a difficult and responsible one, as all arms were turned over to him while the troops were being discharged."

"Lieut. J. P. Van Nest of Co. 'F,' 120th Reg't O. V. I., will leave for his post on the 8th of February. Persons desirous of sending letters or packages to their friends in the Regiment, can do so by leaving them at the Miller House in Ashland."

Letter to his niece:

"In the Trenches Near Blakely Ala,

My Dear Niece Ellie

I know that Ma and all are very anxious to hear from me & I will pencil a short letter to you & relieve the unpleasant suspense if I can escape the shells & minnies long enough to do so.

The column to which my regiment is attached moved from Pensacola Fla. March 20th and after 14 days of the severest marching we reached here where we find the enemy strongly fortified and supported in their works by a gun boat which throws shells of a heavy caliber over our outmost camps. The first day we got here (Sunday April 2nd) we advanced on the enemy's works & threw out our skirmishers quite close to their entrenchments and since then we have dug advanced rifle pits and have had very warm work.

We have not yet got my heavy guns in position & must lie & hear the thunders of their artillery whilst our only reply is with the saucy crack of the sharpshooters trying to pick off the gunners - but not so with our troops a few miles below - who are heavily bombarding the 'Spanish Fort' - which is the key to Mobile - and our force must take that & thus get the gun boats over the bar so as to destroy the enemy's fleet that is above Mobile. If you look on the war map you will see Blakely located on the Tensaw river a few miles above Mobile & connected with it by water. The enemy have a pretty strong fort here and a good line of entrenchments - and as soon as our boats can get up we expect to charge these works & we feel confident that we can take them - though there must be a sacrifice of some lives. We have not had many casualties so far - only two new wounded in our regiment. We are not now much exposed except where they throw shells over us - the rifle balls cannot hit us unless we are standing up or are required to go to the rifle pits in front - which is every night & morning.

I have not got a letter from Ma or Aunt Susan for a long time.

I do not know whether I can send this letter to you or not but I will try - & that is all I can do.

I can't write a long letter now as I have no conveniences - I am lying on the ground with my overcoat to lean on while I am writing - & the bullets & shells are often whistling inquiringly around. Give my love to Miss Mary, Miss Ann, Miss Bernarda and to all who ask after me.

Write to me often - I can get your letters if you cannot get mine.

I am very Affectionately

Your Uncle.

Summerfield To Ellie

There is also a version of the soldier's biographies extracted from the above Hardesty's that has been published by the Richland County Genealogical Society, 1998 called Richland County, Ohio Civil War Veterans.

In the biography of Alfred Wilson: "...At the last named place [Blakely] they came upon the enemy April 1st, and conducted a siege during nine days, a large part of which time their rations consisted of one cracker a day. To such straits were they reduced that on one occasion Mr. Wilson gladly scraped up kernels of corn left by a horse and ate them."

Hardesty's Historical and Geographical Encyclopedia, New York, H. H. Hardesty & Co, 1885, for Richland Co OH: (Moses Andrews biography page 482) [At Alexandria] "Here they remained performing picket duty for a week, and then went to Carrollton, on the Mississippi river above New Orleans, thence by rail to Lake Ponchartrain. They took transports across the lake and marched via Pensacola, Florida, to Fort Blakely, Alabama. They were obliged to build a corduroy road for the passage of their wagons on this march. [See image] After a siege lasting a week they charged on Fort Blakely and captured the fort with many prisoners. This was the last engagement of the war. They were then transported to Galveston, Texas, and thence to Houston, Texas, where they were finally discharged October 14, 1865."

Hardesty's Historical and Geographical Encyclopedia, New York, H. H. Hardesty & Co, 1885, for Richland Co OH (Robert W. Bell biography page 482) "They then went to Blakely and opened the siege on the fort, which they captured at the end of one week, with the loss of but one man."

Hardesty's Historical and Geographical Encyclopedia, New York, H. H. Hardesty & Co, 1885, for Richland Co OH (George A. Flaharty biography page 483) "...marched across the country to Blakely Alabama. They began a siege of the fort of that name, and at the end of seven days charged upon the fort and captured it with two thousand seven hundred prisoners. This engagement occurred on the 25th of April, 1865, after Lee had surrendered, and may be said to be the last battle of the war. They went from Fort Blakely up the Alabama river to Shelby, thence to Mobile, Alabama, and camped for six weeks. On the 16th of June, 1865, they were transported to Galveston, Texas, and after four weeks moved to Houston, Texas, where they were mustered out of service October 14, 1865...." [Lee surrendered 9 April 1865]

On 24 July 1865 many of the men transferred into the 48th O. V. V. I.

[History of the Forty-Eighth Ohio Vet. Vol. Inf......by John A. Bering and Thomas Montgomery, 1880]

Page 187 "On the 2d day of August [1865], a portion of the Regiment embarked and proceeded to Houston, Texas, by way of Buffalo Bayou. The remaining companies followed soon after, by way of Trinity river. Arriving at Houston, we relieved the 34th Iowa, who were to be mustered out."

"The Regiment was now sent by companies to various towns on the railroads running into Houston. Capt. Cochran, with Company C, was stationed at Columbia, on the Brazos river, 85 miles from Houston. While stationed there they buried [page 188] the brother of President Johnson, who had been fatally injured while boating. The company also lost two of its men from malarial fever.

During the summer the Regiment suffered from break-bone fever, causing many to be sick. At one time it was difficult to provide guards for duty. It was not, however, fatal to any of them.

On the 28th of October, we were relieved from duty at Houston, and ordered to relieve the 24th Ind. Vet. Vols. from duty at Galveston, who were then being mustered out of service. In due time we reached Galveston, and took possession of their comfortable quarters.

From the time the Regiment returned to Galveston, in October, 1865, until our muster-out, we performed all kinds of garrison duty, and the officers were more or less on detached service, but we were not well satisfied with our situation or treatment, for we felt that we were detained in the service longer than was actually necessary. In fact, many expressed themselves in such a way as to [page 189] leave no doubt of the feelings of the Regiment."

[Note: page 88 A to Zax dictionary, by Barbara Jean Evans, 1995] "Dengue Known also as break-bone fever. A tropical fever, described as early as 1780. The fever was complicated by pains characteristically in the joints and extremities, but is seldom life threatening. We now know that it is caused by a virus transmitted by a type of mosquito. Also called dandy."]

"Flag of the Harriet Lane. Apropos of the capture of the Harriet Lane, as described in the history of the rebellion now running in The National Tribune, Comrade J. W. Bricker writes from Smithville, O.: 'The 114th Ohio got into Galveston, Tex., in June, 1865. The Buckeye soldiers were looking over the town, and found what they understood to be a rebel Signal corps office where there were many flags on shelves. David L. Hoff, of Co. H, 120th Ohio, was at that time in the 114th, his regiment having been used up on an expedition up Red River in May, 1864. In the supposed rebel signal room Comrade Hoff picked up a large and beautiful United States flag, which was labeled, 'Colors of the Harriet Lane, captured Jan. 1, 1863,' as told in the history of the rebellion. He said, 'I guess I will take this for my share,' and carried it away with him. He displayed the flag on numerous occasions at his home in Smithville, O., but where it is now I do not know, Comrade Hoff having been for some years at the National Military Home.' "The steamer Ruthven brought four companies of the 48th regiment from Galveston. The balance of the regiment will be here in a few days and relieve the 34th Iowa boys."

[Published in Houston Tri-Weekly Telegraph, 27 Oct 1865, page 5, available at GenealogyBank]
"We learn that the 48th Ohio regiment, stationed in this city for some time past, has been ordered to proceed to Galveston, and there relieve one of the regiments whose term of enlistment has expired. The Ohio boys have always endeavored to do their duty since they have been here, and have managed to get along very well with our citizens, and we regret to part with them. We have not yet learned whether there will be a change in the Provost Marshal's office, but hope not, for Capt. McCafferey [Co D 48th] has given entire satisfaction to our citizens since he has held that responsible position. The Captain belongs to the 48th Ohio regiment, and may probably have to accompany it to Galveston. We trust that as long as troops are placed among us, that we may always have as good soldiers as the Ohio boys have been. They will depart for Galveston in a day or two, most of whom, probably, will bid a final adieu to this city."

[Houston Tri-Weekly Telegraph, 18 Oct 1865, page 7, available at GenealogyBank]

This must refer to those who had been with the 114th?

"The remnant of the 120th Ohio regiment, about 140 strong, were mustered out of service yesterday, in this city. They will depart for their homes in Ohio, as soon as transportation can be provided."

Most of the 120th men mustered out of the 48th in October, 1865 at Houston. Others mustered out in May 1866 at Galveston.
