Summit County Beacon {Akron OH}, 22 May 1889, page 6:

"Washington, May 15 [Special].--Assistant Secretary of the Interior Bussey has overruled the decision of Commissioner Dudley, which was offered by Secretary Teller in the case of Rudolph M. Montgomery, a soldier of the 120th O. V. I. Dudley rejected the claim because Montgomery could not prove that he was suffering from an injury to his spine shortly after the battle of Vicksburg, and that therefore, his spine must have been affected before his enlistment. Bussey says that the fact that the soldier was mustered in, is evidence of his physical condition at that time. Now he is disabled and entitled to a pension."

New York Tribune, 16 May 1889, page 7:

"Overruling and Adverse Pension Decision. Washington, May 13.--Assistant Secretary Bussey to-day overruled a former adverse decision of the Interior Department and allowed a pension for aggravation of disease in the service in the case of Rudolph M. Montgomery, late of Company A, 120th Ohio Volunteers. It appears that for five years until within one year previous to his enlistment the claimant suffered from lumbago, and that after the battle of Vicksburg he received an injury to his spine from which he has not recovered. In his decision Mr. Bussey says: 'The ??? and consequent sprain of spine so intensified his disability as to render him incapable of performing ordinary manual labor. The disability thus incurred, though not exclusively due to the service, imposes upon the Government a degree of responsibility for the consequences. This revival of the old disability is fairly ascribed to the line of duty, and pensionable under a liberal though just construction of the law.'

The pension is ordered from the date of filing claimant's original declaration, July 6, 1880."
