Kay has provided this portion of Barret Payne's will freeing the slave Mary and their children:

"I do set free my mulatto woman named Polly and her four last children, Ben, Joe, Ellen, and Fleming with a desire that my Executors shall provide a safe transportation for them in some free state (knowing that according to the present laws of Virginia they cannot remain free in this state) at the expense of my estate, also to pay them the sum of $100 at their place of destination for their present support."

Barret died in 1853.

It is interesting that it looks like Ellen, Joe and Fleming came to Ohio before their father died in 1853. And it seems that their mother, May, was with them.

Banks and we were on the steamer Ohio Bell and when we get to Snaggy Point, the enemy fired on the Boat with shell, and our Colonel Spiegle was killed, and we all un????? to escape, and while I was on the Cabin? deck, I jumped on to the boiler deck, and struck my left hip against what I thought was a wagon bed, and just bruised the joint of my left hip. I did not feel it much until I stopped in the swamp. There was only one comrade then with me. I do not know his name. James MANLEY saw me when I jumped and he knew I was hurt when I stopped in the swamp. My hip was very painful. I was there in the swamp about one day. I suppose I then got with a small squad and went to Baton Rouge. James Wallace was one of the squad, and I think I told him I was hurt. He was my bunk mate. When we got to Baton Rouge I got some linement for it. I did not go to the hospital and was not treated by any surgeon in the service. When I enlisted I lived in Logan County, Ohio. On that day our Regt was on the Ohio Belle going up the Red River on the Banks Expedition. There were 25 of us up on the Hurricane Deck as pickets. We did not think there was anything there but guerillas in the woods, but the first thing we knew they opened on us with cannon and then the Infantry fired into us. Claimant [PAYNE] jumped off of the boat into the water and as he fell struck the side of the boat. I ran down the stairway and there were a couple of Kentucky soldiers swam with a line and pulled the boat to the shore and 154 of us got away. The rebs were on the other side of the river and they captured the balance of the Regt and burned the boat. Our party took to the woods and marched 20 miles and we went into a cotton field and stayed all night. The next day we went to the River and went to Alexandria. It was about 4 weeks after that before Payne joined us. He and one or two more men lay in a swamp awhile. ??? first gun boat that came along they got on it. When he came to us he was all stiffened up and kind of limped when he walked and he was that way when I left the Regt in Oct or Nov 1864. I just saw him as he was on the way to be mustered out and I never saw him again until about 4 years ago. He was near? lame then he was in the army and he complained of rheumatism.... in ?? places. He might have struck the lower deck when he jumped but he ? arrived to jump in the river.
